Features

The Integration Layer (ILY) extension offers the ability to integrate Aptean extensions, enabling interaction with each other, without any dependency.

- Using this app, you can share data, open functional usage between Aptean extensions, and integrate food processes.
- Integration Layer only consists of generic (helper) functions related to the interface process. To know more, see here.
- To know more about the permission set required by the user to use the integrations, see here.

Introduction

Article • 4/29/2023 • 1 min read

The Aptean Integration Layer (ILY) extension connects installed Aptean extensions enabling interaction with each other, without any dependency. Extensions that use Integration Layer do have a dependency on this app.

Using this app, it is possible to share data, open functional usage between Aptean extensions, and integrate food processes without dependency. Extensions can be developed and maintained independently of each other.

When an extension is not installed, the interface with this app will simply not respond and not throw any errors. As a result, customers are flexible in selecting extensions they would like to use and install and/or upgrade them separately, as long as there are no breaking changes.

Example Scenario

For the Aptean Mobile Warehouse extension, we need the possibility to register packaging transactions if the customer uses the Aptean Packaging extension. The integration in this case, without creating dependency, is handled via the Aptean Integration Layer app.

High level overview

Article • 4/29/2023 • 2 min read

Important

Integration Layer only consists of generic (helper) functions related to the interface process. All module specific code related to the interface process is part of the specific modules.

1. The packaging entries (only available/known by the Mobile Warehouse app) are packed (serialized to JSON via the Integration Layer helper function) and sent via generic functions available in the Integration Layer app, on the basis of the interface contract. It's possible to serialize to JSON automatically or define the schema (per field (type) + how to handle) yourself.
2. The package is received and unpacked (deserialized) by the Packaging extension, again using generic functions available in the Integration Layer app, on the basis of the interface contract. When fields aren't present in the defined schema, they will not be parsed i.e. skipped.
3. The App Integration Code triggers the defined procedure in the Packaging extension. In this case, register the Packaging entries on the basis of the received record set in the actual Packaging entries table (only available/known by the Packaging app). When all goes well, Packaging will set Handled to true. When errors occur in this final step, it's necessary to also backport the messages to the Mobile Warehouse extension. Again, this is possible by using the generic functions available in the Integration Layer app on basis of its specific interface contract.

Permissions

Article • 4/3/2023 • 1 min read

The Integration Layer extension uses the permission set IntegrationLayer40FDW. All users should get assigned with this permission set to use the integrations.
